"In August of 2009, I traveled to Israel for the first time. As an illustrator who frequently does religious work, I had already been commissioned to paint images of the holy land numerous times. After working from photographs for so many years, my whole view of the place expanded and ripened when I went in person. History is still alive in Israel, and its mark upon the land is so ancient that even a man-made environment can appear natural. The line blurs between human and nature, between past and future, in Eretz Yisrael."

"Sales from this show will help fund my return to Israel for the olive harvest, when I hope to research a children's book that I am writing and illustrating about a 2000-year-old olive tree."
